CAN YOU GUESS.

Here's a Chance to Make
Ten Dollars Easy.

All You Have to Do Is to Pick the Winners in the Coming Primary.

Just for the interest attached to a guessing contest and to put a little more interest into the coming campaign for County officers, The News will give its readers a chance to make ten dollars and have a little fun at guessing on the side.

To the person making the first nearest correct guess of the winners in the Democratic Primary Election which will be held in this county on Saturday, June 1st, 1901, The News will present a ten dollar gold piece. The conditions of the contest are simple. Old subscribers and new subscribers who pay $2 on their subscriptions will each be entitled to a guess, and to as many guesses as they pay year's subscription. If no one guesses correctly, the first one who guesses the closest to all the winners will receive the ten dollars.

You intend to pay your subscription anyway, and you may as well pay before the first day of June and have a chance of getting your money back, besides gaining the distinction of knowing more about the political situation than your neighbors.

Each guess will be registered when received as to the exact day, hour and minute. No one will be permitted to see how any one else has guessed. In guessing only the offices on the ballot are to be considered.

LAND CRABS.

One of the commonest and the largest of the Christmas island land crabs is the well known robber crab, which is found in most of the tropical islands of the Indian and Pacific oceans. It sometimes reaches a length of two feet and may measure seven inches across the back. Its colors are of a very gaudy description, the ground color being a bright red, upon which there are stripes of yellow, but in some cases a purplish blue is the prevailing tint. The eyes are fixed on stalks which can be moved independently of one another, and there are two pairs of feelers, one long, the other short. The latter pair are continually jerked up and down. There is a pair of powerful claws, then several walking legs. In general appearance these animals are much more like rather stout lobsters than crabs, and one's first encounter with one of these creatures in the middle of a forest is from the sea is productive of much astonishment on both sides.

Another species of land crab common in Christmas island is a little bright red animal which in general shape is much like the common shore crab. This variety makes burrows in the ground, and in some places the soil is honeycombed with hundreds of holes. The crabs spend most of their time collecting dead leaves, which they carry in their claws, holding them up over their heads, and drag down into their burrows, into which they scuttle at the least alarm.—Pearson's Magazine.

Crabs in Disguise.

Human beings are not the only creatures that have discovered the appetizing, though indigestible, qualities of crabs, and some of these animals have been compelled to resort to various defensive measures. Disguise is one of these and is practiced with great effect by spider crabs.

These delicately blue up seaweeds and plant them on their backs, very soon establishing a growth which harmonizes perfectly with the surroundings and deceives many an enemy. Should the weeds grow too vigorously, the crab industriously prunes them with his claws and every now and then scrapes the whole lot off and starts a fresh garden on his roof, so to speak.

The sponge crab behaves in a similar manner, slipping off little bits of living sponge and sticking them on his back, where they grow vigorously. The same end is served in the other case. It is very amusing to keep crabs of one or other of these kinds in an aquarium and deprive them of the usual means of concealment.

They get very nervous and agitated and try to cover themselves with bits of paper or anything else that may be provided. One such captive is said to have had a little greatcoat made for him, which he put on in a hurry as soon as it was handed to him.

The Earl and the Highwayman.

One night when the Earl of Stanhope was walking alone in the Kentish woods a man jumped out of the hedge, leveled a pistol and demanded his purse.

"My good man, I have no money with me," said Lord Stanhope in his remarkably slow tones. The robber laid hands on his watch.

"No," Lord Stanhope went on, "that watch you must not have. It was given to me by one I love. It is worth £100. If you will trust me, I will go back to my traveling bag and bring a £100 note and place it in the hollow of that tree. I cannot lose my watch."

The man did trust him. The earl did bring the note. Years after Lord Stanhope was at a city dinner, and next to him sat a London alderman of great wealth, a man widely respected.

He and the earl talked of many things and found each other mutually entertaining. Next day Lord Stanhope received a letter, out of which dropped a £100 note. "It was your lordship's kind loan of this sum," said the note, "that started me in life and enabled me to have the honor of sitting next to your lordship at dinner." A strange story; but the Stanhopes are a strange race, and things happen to them that never did or could occur to other people.

To Be Cheerful.

The sovereign, voluntary path to cheerfulness, is to sit up cheerfully, to look around cheerfully and to act and speak as if cheerfulness were already there. If such conduct doesn't make you soon feel cheerful, nothing else will on that occasion. So, to feel brave, act as if you were brave, use all our will to that end, and a courage fit will very likely replace the fit of fear.

Again, in order to feel kind toward a person to whom we have been inimical, the only way is more or less deliberately to smile, to make sympathetic inquiries and to force ourselves to say genial things. One hearty laugh together will bring enemies into closer communion of heart than hours spent on both sides in inward wrestling with the mental demon of uncharitable feeling.

Why We Wink.

No satisfactory determination has been made of the reason we wink. Some suppose that the descent and return of the lid over the eye serve to sweep or wash it off; others that covering of the eye gives it a rest from the labor of vision. If only for an inappreciable instant. This view borrows some force from the fact that the record of winking is considerably used by experimental physiologists to help measure the fatigue which the eye suffers.—Popular Science.

EDITOR NEWS:—

In the last edition of the Paris Democrat appeared a call upon me to become a candidate for Chief of Police in this city. This call was not written or published at the request of any friends of mine. The editor of the Democrat told me he had received the call through the mail. If he had received it through the mail, this publishing an anonymous communication he violated a well established rule of all first-class newspapers. Captain Mernagh never had a truer friend than myself nor one who more reveres his memory. I not only never had nor have I now the remotest idea of becoming a candidate for this office besides the matter was never directly nor indirectly suggested to me by any of my friends. The call in the Democrat was dictated, written and signed by those who are not my friends and done solely for the purpose of injuring me and my friends in the estimation of our dear chief and his friends whose names are legion.

Yours truly

LEE BELL.

Pity the Poor Knockers.

There are some persons so constituted by birth that they are unable to speak or write of any occurrence without knocking, even though they do so some time in a sarcastic manner. These people are to be pitied. They belong to that class of nuisances which the people of every community have to endure in silence.

We would like for every housekeeper in the county to see our stock of wall papers. It would be in the nature of a surprise to you to see what a complete stock we carry.

Successor to Chief Mernagh.

The City Council will hold a special meeting to-day to elect a successor to Chief of Police Mernagh to fill out his unexpired term. In all probability Mr. George M. Hill, the senior deputy officer, will be selected, and it would be a wise move on the part of the Council. Mr. Hill has been deputy officer for about sixteen years, and is a cool and courageous official. He has filled the position with credit to himself and satisfaction to the citizens, and it would be a selection satisfactory to a great majority of the people were he appointed to the office of Chief.

STORIES OF THE STAGE.

Coming Attractions, Gossip in the Lobby and Boxes.

"THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT." Many inquiries are being made concerning the approaching entertainment "The House That Jack Built," and we take pleasure in repeating that it is a charming opera with the cent of characters that the name indicates, taken from Mother Goose's old, yet ever new jingling melodies. All the favorites will be there, from Little Miss Muffet and Little Boy Blue to the Queen of Hearts and Old King Cole, a brilliant and beautiful company in fancy costumes with marches, drills, dances, choruses, frolic and fun. The entertainment will be under the auspices of the Federations of Clubs for the benefit of the Public Library, June 14th and 15th (matinee), at the Grand Opera House.

BOURBON COLLEGE ENTERTAINMENT. The Education, Delaware and Musical Recital to be given at the Opera House to-night by the pupils of the Bourbon Female College, will be in the nature of a society event, and a large crowd is anticipated. The musical part of the programme will be especially interesting. The instrumental music will be furnished by Mr. Harry O. Samuels, and Signor D'Anna and Miss McCormick, of Bourbon College. Miss Samuels, of Mt. Sterling, will render two vocal selections. The elocution, delarte and pantomime rendered by Miss Vanardall's class will be a special feature of the evening's entertainment. The nature of the entertainment and the pleasant weather should insure a crowded house to-night.

The "Picks."

The entertainment given by the "Pickwick" Club at the Opera House on Friday night was both an artistic and financial success. The house was crowded and every act on the program received well merited applause. Mr. and Mrs. McCann were, of course, well received by their many friends; Miss Hammond and Mr. Mitchell each scored a decided hit in the sketch "Edgewood." The Reynolds children scored another hit, as did the Mandolin Quartet. Miss Judith Hunkill sang and danced herself into the hearts of the audience. She possesses a wonderful stage presence, and is the personification of grace. She has been engaged to appear at the entertainment given by the A. O. U. W. lodge on the evening of June 12th, and will present a new and up-to-date act.

Comical Clowns.

A ring show without a clown disporting himself in the sawdust and making people laugh, would be like short-cake without strawberries. Sells and Gray's show has a bunch of these funny fellows headed by DeLong the famous clown, whose name is most appropriate to his stature as he towers about seven feet above the earth and looks down easily on sixteen other big and little clowns possessed by this show. These clowns appear frequently during the performance, and their funny acts would make the performance worth seeing even if the acrobatic features were of ordinary interest, but when the whole program is replete with good acts of every description, the show becomes doubly enjoyable. The Paris date is next Friday.

The delegation of business men, representing the Cincinnati Business Men's Club, which made a trip to Lexington Saturday, on their return stopped over in this city for about 15 minutes. They were traveling on a special train which arrived here about 5:40 p. m. They were met at the depot by Mr. A. J. Winters, representing the Paris Commercial Club, and headed by their excellent band, made a parade down Pleasant street and up Main to the depot. Literature advertising Cincinnati was freely distributed. They were a very handsome body of men, and we were regretted that schedule would not allow them a longer stay. Owing to the short notice of their intention to stop over here it was impossible to arrange for the Commercial Club to meet them in a body. They however expressed their intention to pay Paris a special visit in the future when they will be properly entertained.

OUR CITY MOURNS

Death of Chief Of Police James Mernagh Regarded As a Public Calamity.

ONLY A SHORT ILLNESS.

His Funeral the Largest Ever Held in Paris—Sketch Of His Life and Incidents In His Public Career.

To say that the entire city was shocked on Saturday morning on learning of the sudden and entirely unexpected death of Chief of Police James Mernagh, would be but feebly expressing it. Mr. Mernagh was supposed by his friends to be in the best of health, although he had been recently complaining of severe pains in the back, caused by kidney trouble. At an early hour on Saturday morning his wife was aroused by his groanings, and hastily summoning a neighbor she then telephoned for a physician, but before he arrived Mr. Mernagh had passed away.

In the death of James Mernagh, familiarly called by his friends "Laddie," Paris has suffered a calamity. The benefits the city of Paris has derived from his services as Chief of Police is incalculable. He was at one and the same time a terror to evil doers, and a kind and warm friend to those who obeyed the law. It had taken him a life time to build up this reputation. As an officer he was a model one. Stern and altogether impartial in the performance of his sworn duties, he at the same time showed that he was a friend to those who were endeavoring to do right.

Many incidents could be related of acts of kindness and charity he had bestowed upon various members of the colored race in this city, and there are hundreds of them to-day who deeply and sincerely mourn his loss.

At the entrance to the Catholic Church yesterday an aged and gray-haired colored woman stood with bowed head and tears flowing down her cheeks. To a friend she said: "No one will miss Mr. Mernagh more than I. He has befriended me on several occasions when I was badly in need of a friend, and on two occasions he paid my taxes and enabled me to save my little home in Clayville."

It was only recently that the writer witnessed a charitable act of his. "He had arrested a mountaineer for being drunk and discharging a firearm on the street. The fine took all the money the fellow had and left him stranded. He appealed to the Chief that he had a wife and two children up in the mountains who were watching and waiting for his return home. Mr. Mernagh went down into his pocket, brought up the amount necessary for the purchase of a railroad ticket, and with some advice for him in the future to let whiskey alone and think more of his wife and little ones, sent him on his way rejoicing."

There was not a police officer in the country more widely known than Mr. Mernagh. Chief of Police Dietrich, of Cincinnati, has often said he regarded him as a model police officer.

Mr. Mernagh was born in County Galway, Ireland, in 1843. He came to this country with his parents in 1850, and located in Millersburg, shortly after removing to Paris. For a short while he was a deputy officer, but has filled the position of Chief of Police for twenty-six years. He was absolutely fearless. At various times during his incumbency of the office he has taken fearful chances on his life. It has been often said that whenever he went after a man he invariably got him. It was this reputation for fearlessness which made his success as an officer. At one time he single handed and alone dispersed a mob who were gathered at the jail doors and the only damage done was the slight wounding of one of the participants. There was a certain superstition which ran about his very name, which when uttered would cause the lawless to hesitate.

He was one of the few surviving members of the "Orphan Brigade," belonging to Company G, Second Kentucky Infantry, and his record as a soldier was as brave and fearless as that of a police officer.

Mr. Mernagh leaves two brothers, Dennis and Peter Mernagh, and an ever loving and devoted wife, nee Miss Ella McCarney.

As soon as his death was announced, Mayor Perry issued the following proclamation:

"Paris mourns the untimely death of our late Chief of Police James Mernagh. The funeral services over his remains will be held on Monday, May 27, 1901, from 9 to 11 a. m., and as a testimonial of respect, I request that the schools close on that day and all business houses close during the hours of the funeral. BENJ. PERRY, Mayor."

In accordance with this request, during the hours of the funeral every store, bank and public building was closed with curtains drawn. The City Building was draped in mourning and will remain so for thirty days.

The funeral took place yesterday morning at nine o'clock from the Catholic Church, of which the deceased was a member, and was the largest funeral ever held in Paris. The crowds began to gather at the church as early as seven o'clock, and at the hour of nine an almost impassable crowd was congregated in the neighborhood. The services at the church were conducted by Rev. Father T. S. Major, of Frankfort, who was a comrade of the deceased, being also a member of the "Orphan Brigade." The funeral cortege was the longest ever witnessed in this city, it being estimated that there were at least two hundred vehicles in line. Every station in life was represented. Black and white, rich and poor, all were mingled in one common mass to show reverence and respect to the memory of the departed. The interment took place at the Paris Cemetery.

At the grave Capt. J. M. Thomas offered a beautiful prayer, paying a high tribute to the deceased. Forty-one ex-Confederates attended the funeral. The pall-bearers were: Honorary, Paris City Officials. Active, Capt. E. F. Spears, J. J. Corrington, W. H. Whaley, J. C. Elgin, H. M. Carpenter, Geo. Gregory, Geo. W. Hill and Simeon Doty.

Go To Paris, Ky.

The Taylorville (Ill.) Courier and Democrat says:

"Mr. and Mrs. Geo. P. Altmeyer left Monday evening for Paris, Ky., where they will make their future home. Mr. Altmeyer will establish a cigar factory in Paris, a larger town than Taylorville and now without a single cigar factory. George will manufacture his famous Pagoda down there, and if the Kentuckians don't like it they don't know what's good, that's all. The Courier takes pleasure in recommending Mr. Altmeyer to the people of Paris. He is a business man of the strictest integrity, and enjoys the full confidence of our citizens. He will prove a valuable acquisition to Paris."

You Do, or You Don't Need Gasses

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the selection of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be restored to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combated. Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in. Our Dr. C. H. BOWEN having just returned from taking a special course in Optics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to do the best of work, having the latest improved methods of fitting.

ITS A WASTE OF WORDS

To attempt to describe all of the seasonable shoes in our store would be a waste of words. We would rather have you inspect in person. We might talk for a column about what we have and not impress you half so much as a few minutes spent in looking at the goods. Our low cut shoes, for women, are particularly supple and stylish this season—fit the foot too as only good shoes can. We can fit your foot as smoothly as a kid glove fits the hand, and with a shoe that is dainty, stylish and perfectly reliable. You will need them, buy early—more chance to get fitted with just the shoe that you want.

FUTURE WORLD CAPITAL.

New York Is Outstripping Old London.

Since the formation of Greater New York there has been much interest in the question, How long will it take us to catch up with London? The new British census now gives our one rival for world capitalism 4,530,034 people against 4,211,050 in 1901, a gain of only 7 1/2 per cent.

But before jubilation at these figures it is well to remember that the London meant in the dispatches is the "county" or "metropolitan" London. There are four other London's, the "city" corresponding to New York below Wall street; "greater London," or the metropolitan police district; board of works London and parliamentary London. The two latter may be omitted from the comparison of a century's growth with that of New York, which is shown in this table:

	NEW YORK.	GREATER LONDON.
1800.....	60,430	1,500,000
1850.....	515,457	1,815,000
1900.....	513,000	4,530,034
	City.	County.
1801.....	5,200,000	5,200,000
1851.....	11,000,000	11,000,000
1881.....	12,000,000	12,000,000
1901.....	12,000,000	12,000,000

Greater London has for a century grown about 20 per cent each decade; from 1801 to 1901, 18.2 per cent. For 100 years New York has now bounded has increased about 40 per cent every ten years; from 1800 to 1900, 37 per cent, twice as rapidly as London. At 35 per cent increase we shall reach 1910 4,640,000 people; at 40 per cent, 4,812,000. Either number will probably equal inner London in 1911, for the latter has almost stopped growing. It does not crowd into high buildings, and many old buildings are being torn away for parks and improved homes for workmen. The future growth of London, as of New York, will be in its outer boroughs. It has the advantage of being able to annex its "surroundings" while our Jersey suburbs, quite as much a part of New York, cannot be added to it. However, even "greater London" must yield to New York before midcentury.

MCKINLEY'S NERVE FORCE.

Value of the President's Influence Over His Wife.

The news that Mrs. McKinley had partially succumbed to the fatigues of the presidential tour was received by her friends in Washington with concern, says the New York World. No surprise was expressed, however, as it has been known in Washington that Mrs. McKinley's health has visibly failed during the last six months. A lady who has known her intimately for 25 years said the other day:

"The fact that Mrs. McKinley has borne up thus far against the fatigue incident to her position is the result of most assiduous attention on the part of President McKinley. He has a wonderful influence upon her. With a few strokes of his hand he can subdue her most violent attacks of headache. With cheering words he can rouse her quickly from a condition of almost collapse. His support of his wife during her affliction is one of the most touching cases of personal devotion and one of the most significant examples of the power of animal magnetism on record. "When the president and his wife are living their quiet home life, Mrs. McKinley's health is generally good for one so delicately organized. During seasons when the president's health is constantly distressed by numerous ailments and the change of scene and place prevents him from those little ministrations usual and expected by Mrs. McKinley she always develops illness."

"Mrs. McKinley has never been attacked since President McKinley was attacked by the grip last January. Her anxiety, although she was not permitted to spend her strength in nursing him, wore her out, and since his recovery President McKinley has not enjoyed to the full degree his usual robust and superabundant health and spirits. Her collapse during the trying inaugural season and now on this trip is more to be attributed to this debilitated nerve force of the president than loss of her own strength."

Celluloid Made Without Camphor. United States Consul Hughes at Coburg, under date of April 12, 1901, writes as follows to the state department at Washington: "Celluloid has always been manufactured by dissolving nitrocellulose in camphor—that is to say, forming a mixture of nitrocellulose, camphor and alcohol. But there are other ways of mixing it. According to a publication of the Societe Generale Pour la Fabrication des Matieres Plastiques de Paris, celluloid can be made by using naphthalene instead of camphor. The celluloid thus produced, the paper adds, is just as good as, if not better than, that in which camphor forms one of the ingredients."

Says X Rays Will Not Pierce Dead Bodies.

According to reports made by the eminent Professor Ottolenghi of the University of Siena, recent experiments show that, while the X rays may be applied with success to the lungs of a person who is alive or in a trance, it is impossible to apply them to the lungs of a person actually dead, owing to the fact that some intervening obstacle prevents the rays from penetrating into the body, says a special cable dispatch from Rome to the New York Journal. It suggests that this test be used in future by physicians in all cases where doubt exists as to death.

PRINCE OF PROMOTERS.

Interesting Incidents in the Career of Count Mitkiewicz.

Traveled Widely and Was Everywhere Renowned For Remarkable Talents—Headquartered Earl L. and Almost Secured a Concession From the Chinese Empire to Build Telephone Lines There.

Count Eugene Mitkiewicz, who made and lost many fortunes, died the other night at his summer home in Asbury Park of heart disease.

Eugene Stanislaus Kostra de Mitkiewicz had a history that reads like a sensational fiction, says the New York World. His claims to the title of count have been stubbornly disputed, although his family is of high social standing in Poland.

His American debut occurred in November, 1893, at a ball given in honor of the Russian fleet then anchored in New York harbor. There he met Miss Julia Lumello, a noted New York beauty, and, as the story goes, playfully transferred from her finger to his own a valuable diamond ring.

He returned it a day later with apologies, but the costly stones had been replaced with paste. Mitkiewicz was lodged in the Tombs, but Miss Lumello refused to prosecute.

That summer the count appeared at Amherst, Mass., in the guise of a nobleman with an annual income of $300,000. He was a suitor for the hand of Miss Caroline Lester, an heiress. The family opposed the suit, but ten years later he married her.

His plan was to win concessions from the Chinese government for a national banking business and a complete system of railroads, telegraphs and telephones for the vast kingdom. Li Hung Chang gave Count Mitkiewicz his friendship and support.

In 1887 the count reappeared in this country, proudly announcing possession of these wonderful Chinese concessions and asking $2,000,000 with which to make a billion or more.

Warren Barker of Philadelphia, and other prominent men joined the count, with plenty of money. All that was needed was to obtain the signature of the Chinese minister at Washington to certain papers. That signature was never secured, and the gigantic scheme collapsed.

He was sued civilly and prosecuted criminally. With unflinching nerve he met every attack, laughing at his accusers and throwing money away with both hands.

The count's daily tip to his favorite barber was a dollar note. His weekly bills at Delmonico's averaged close to $1,000. His gifts to impetuous friends were princely in amount and manner of bestowal. A mere hint of financial need opened the count's purse to any man he fancied.

But when his money was exhausted Count Mitkiewicz borrowed just as recklessly as he had previously given. Friends became fewer, and during the last few years he had been heard of seldom except in connection with claims, suits and judgments.

Count Mitkiewicz was married three times. His first wife died in 1885, leaving several children. Two years later he married the granddaughter of Chief Justice John Marshall. She died in 1893. His widow was Miss Ethel Small of Melville, Md.

HEAT FROM STARS. Recorded by an Instrument Used by Professor E. F. Nichols.

That some of the fixed stars and also the planets send heat to the earth in the rays which show us their position in space has been demonstrated by Professor E. F. Nichols of Dartmouth college near Williams Bay, Wis., who for two years has been experimenting in the Yerkes observatory in Chicago.

It is needless to say that the amount of heat is infinitesimal, and this fact attests to the sensitiveness of the radiometer, the professor's instrument. He is so finely constructed that it detects the heat thrown out from a candle a mile away.

Herefore astronomers have wondered if the light rays of the stars carried with them any heat. The great distance of the stars from the earth rendered the hypothesis improbable. In traveling so many hundreds of millions of miles of space warmth would be dissipated.

Professor Nichols's instrument resembles somewhat the bolometer and the radiometer used in measuring heat rays.

Skin affections will readily disappear by using DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Look out for counterfeits. If you get DeWitt's you will get good results. It is the quick and positive cure for piles. —W. T. Brooks.

For Whooping Cough. "Both my children were taken with whooping cough," writes Mrs. O. E. Dutton, of Danville, Ill. "A small bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar gave such relief that I used a 50 cent bottle which saved me a doctor's bill." Clarke & Kenney.

The liability to disease is greatly lessened when the blood is in good condition, and the circulation healthy and vigorous.

For then all refuse matter is promptly carried out of the system; otherwise it would rapidly accumulate, fermentation would take place, the blood become polluted and the constitution so weakened that a simple malady might result seriously.

A healthy, active circulation means good digestion and strong, healthy nerves. As a blood purifier and tonic S. S. S. has no equal. It is the safest and best remedy for old people and children because it contains no minerals, but is made exclusively of roots and herbs.

Care of Turkeys. Should a sudden shower come up while the young turkeys are out foraging drive them to their coops. If any get chilled and refuse to eat, take them to the house, dry and warm them thoroughly, return to the mother and give a good feed with plenty of red pepper or ginger mixed in. Where insect forage is abundant turkeys will pick the greater part of their living for three or four weeks, and in such localities it will do to turn them out after they are three months old without any breakfast, but they should always have a handful of grain at night even if they come home with full crops.—American Agriculturist.

Making New Orchards. There are many old orchards over the country which will hardly continue to be serviceable until a new orchard comes into profitable bearing, which will be not much less than ten years. It will be the part of wisdom to prepare for the new one. The best site should be selected—not among old trees, but a new place, and the newer well fenced, and the old should be well fenced. The stock of all kinds will be excluded. Plowing should be done before planting, and manuring, if necessary, before plowing.
